BAD WEATHER DRIVES ZEP TO SHUN MOSCOW

Soviet Officials Authorize Change in Itinerary With Regret.

CAPITAL HAD HOPED FOR SIGHT OF CRAFT

Ural Mountains and Wild Lake Regions Lie in Path to Tokyo.

GOOD SPEED MARKS FIRST 800 MILES

Japanese Make Exhaustive Plans to Welcome Giant Air Liner.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Aug. 16 (Friday) (A. P.).—A radio message from the Graf Zeppelin received at 3 a. m. (8 p. m. Eastern standard time), said that it was compelled to proceed north, avoiding Moscow, because of unfavorable weather.

Dr. Hugo Eckener had radioed a request to the Soviet authorities for permission to change the agreed upon itinerary because of unfavorable weather conditions.

The authorities replied that a flight by the airship over this capital was urgently desirable but they left to its commander the final decision, depending upon the meteorological conditions which he faced.

The Graf Zeppelin was first sighted from Russian soil at 9:30 p. m. Eastern European time (2:30 p. m. Eastern standard time) from the frontier post of Bologoye on the Latvian border.

(Associated Press.)

The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, under way on the greatest flight of its career, Thursday night was over territory of the Soviet Union en route to Tokyo on the second stage of its world-circling tour.

For about four days the giant airship will be above Soviet soil as it flies eastward across the plains of Europe and Asia, the Ural mountains and wild lake regions on its way to the Land of the Rising Sun.

The Zeppelin crossed the Russian frontier at 2:30 p. m. Eastern standard time, yesterday near Dvinsk (Daugavpils), Latvia. It had left German soil behind at 11:05 a. m. Eastern standard time, when it was sighted over Tilsit, East Prussia, on the Lithuanian border.

Flying Speed Reduced.

From Tilsit to Dvinsk is a distance of about 190 miles and the time of nearly four hours and a half indicated a flying speed of about 55 miles an hour.

As she left German soil behind her at 5:05 p. m. Thursday (11:05 a. m. Eastern standard time), the Graf had logged to her credit roughly 800 miles of her 7,000-mile flight from Friedrichshafen to Tokyo in twelve and one half hours of flying time, including a detour over Berlin.

This distance was covered at a speed of 64 miles an hour, a shade over what Dr. Hugo Eckener hoped to average on the second leg of the epoch-making flight around the world.

Berlin Hails Zeppelin.

The only large town on the way after leaving Tilsit is Duenaburg, in Latvia, an important air port on the regular air lines to Moscow from western Europe.

Berlin gave her a great demonstration as she roared with the full blast of her motors down the famous Unter den Linden. Work stopped in shops and factories and people crowded into the streets to watch the pride of German aviation go by on her most perilous flight.

Leipzig, Nuremberg and Stuttgart all had a view of the silver queen of the skies. At Stuttgart she crossed the Polish corridor, the only Polish territory Dr. Eckener flew over at all.

Over the free city of Danzig, formerly a German city, he dropped a German flag.

Koenigsberg, in East Prussia, sighted the Graf next and less than an hour later the dirigible had left behind the Pomeranian and was cruising into Lithuania.

Dr. Eckener hoped, with favorable weather conditions, to make the 7,000 miles from Friedrichshafen to Tokyo in 120 hours, all told. He must maintain a speed of 60 miles an hour to do so. This would bring the Graf to Tokyo late on Monday, Tokyo time.

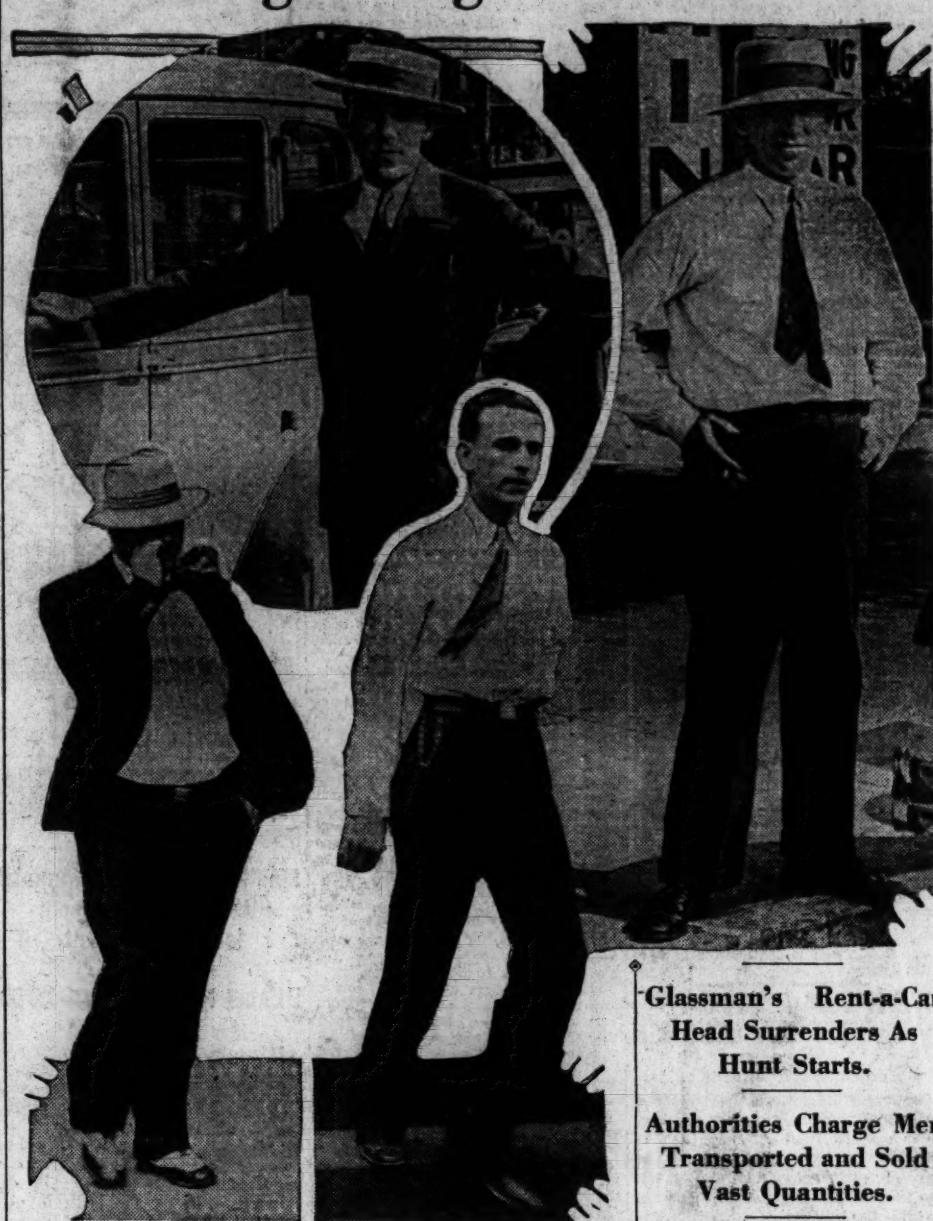

Danger of Forced Landing.

Since Dr. Eckener has estimated that the Graf can keep moving for 150 hours he has a margin of 30 hours of flying time to allow for bad weather and unfavorable winds. If he exceeds this margin, the Graf, with her twenty passengers and crew of 40, may be forced down in the wilds of eastern Asia.

Berlin, Aug. 15 (A. P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, after flying over the capital this morning, tonight crossed the Memel River into Lithuania en route to Tokyo.

The Hamburg Marine Weather Bureau tonight reported that the air-

HANNA AVOIDS QUIZ ON TRACTION UNITY

Shies at Role of Prophet in the Event Increased Fare Is Denied.

FAIR RETURN DISCUSSED

The Public Utilities Commission is obliged to consider and protect the interests of the public as well as the interests of the utilities corporations, John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., agreed yesterday in the course of cross-examination by People's Counsel Ralph B. Fiehrly at the fare hearing.

Fiehrly's cross-examination was brief and did little more than indicate the line of argument and future motions he plans to make later in the case. He questioned the valuation of the Capital Traction Co., touched on the "going value" of the company allowed for in the valuation, and got Hanna to admit that if the company could not earn a "fair return" by means of higher fares, a change in the conditions under which the company operates would be necessary.

But Hanna refused to answer a simple yes to that question and shied.

$40,000 Is Reported to Be Secreted in Old House After Police Arrest 11 Persons in Connection With Theft of $1,000 of Hoard.

During the six months she has been an inmate of the District's poorhouse at Blue Plains, vandals have ransacked and robbed the home of Miss Emily Magruder, 90 years old, of 1304 Thirty-fifth street northwest, of approximately $1,000 of the $40,000 she is reported to have secreted in various parts of the house, police of the Seventh Precinct disclosed last night with the arrest of eleven persons, all Negroes.

While investigating the robbery yesterday, Precinct Detective Norman S. Nodkinson and Policemen William O'Connor and Charles C. Clay, all of the Seventh Precinct, discovered more than $500 in old paper currency and more than $100 in old silver coins hidden behind pictures, under papers and stuffed in cracks in the walls of the dilapidated frame building which has been condemned by the District government.

SETBACK SEEN IN 'YARDSTICK' NAVAL ACCORD

Building Plans of Italy and France Hamper British Reduction.

U. S. MUST ENLARGE SEA FORCE, IS BELIEF

England Blocked in Move for Parity Also by Japan, It Is Argued.

GRAVE SNAG ARISES IN CRUISER PARLEYS

London Admiralty Contents Fleet Strength Now Is at Minimum.

London, Aug. 15 (N. Y. W. S.).—President Hoover's naval conference in Washington following the latest Dawes-MacDonald talks, seems to have advanced negotiations to a point where the United States awaits a statement from Great Britain as to the minimum cruiser strength which this country requires.

After these requirements are made known it is intended to invoke yardstick computations to decide how many American cruisers will have to be built to arrive at parity.

It is therefore probable that real difficulties in the reduction of armaments campaign will shortly confront the statesmen. As seen here, the most important of these will be Premier MacDonald's enforced and unwilling statement that British cruiser strength cannot be greatly reduced beyond cuts already made so that American building up to secure parity with Great Britain will be necessary under the declared American policy.

Biggest Snag of All.

The biggest snag of all in these preliminary Anglo-American discussions to all probability will be found to be Great Britain's inability to name any cruiser minimum which will meet her needs except under the assumption that France and Italy will reduce their own building programs.

What is puzzling the British experts most of all at present is how to it in any satisfactory agreement with the United States with the British policy of sea supremacy in European waters.

One result of these negotiations, though it will not come until a general naval conference is noted, will probably be a pronouncement that Great Britain, while adhering to the 5-5-3 ratio with America and Japan, will not permit herself to be outclassed by any possible European combination. What that implies, and what MacDonald is up against in trying to deal with the American desire for cruiser reduction, is best indicated by the following facts which imply factors of vast moment:

Home Fleet to Be Enlarged.

The British navy, excluding destroyers and submarines, is at present dispersed throughout the world, based upon eight naval stations as follows: In home waters are four battleships and five cruisers with three battleships and four cruisers in reserve. To this home fleet will be added in October four battleships from the Mediterranean.

In the Mediterranean, based on Malta, are nine battleships of which four, as stated, are being transferred to home station, nine cruisers and four sloops.

Two cruisers and four sloops are based on Cape Town, African station.

The Australian navy has four cruisers under Australian control, fortified by three cruisers and two sloops of the British navy of New Zealand station.

American and West Indies Station.

Five cruisers and two sloops constitute the force on the American and West Indies station.

These forces, thus distributed over trade routes throughout the world, according to the admiralty, are at present insufficient to guard imperial interests.

Apart from policing work, which compels dispersion of smaller cruisers, the strategic position in the Mediterranean is highly relative to reduction plans. Five battleships, nine cruisers and four sloops based on Malta after October have to be considered in connection with French and Italian fleets and programs as follows:

France, since 1920, has laid down or has authorized six 10,000-ton cruisers, three 7,800-ton cruisers, two aircraft carriers, 34 flotilla leaders, 28 destroyers, 91 submarines and 12 sloops—a total of 164 ships. The official French building scheme, covering construction to the year 1942, provides for 223 ships, the list being composed of 18 cruisers, 90 destroyers, 100 submarines, 100 flotilla leaders, 100 aircraft carriers, 100 aircraft, 100 minesweepers, 100 mines, 100 torpedoes, 100 submarines, 100 flotilla leaders, 100 aircraft carriers, 100 aircraft, 100 minesweepers, 100 mines, 100 torpedoes.

Transportation Alleged.

Goldstein and Cissell are alleged to have transported large quantities of liquor from Baltimore, and the affidavit specifies that the goods so transported were stored in the two garages.

Behrle and Goldstein also are charged with having transported intoxicants from Baltimore to the District of Columbia and automobiles containing intoxicants.

David Glassman, brother of Herbert Glassman, is charged in the affidavit with the transportation of liquor.

COLLAPSE OF PARLEY AT HAGUE IN TWO DAYS IS SEEN AS INEVITABLE

Gallinger Patients Menaced by Those Mentally Diseased

Darkened Strong Room and Confinement at St. Elizabeths Are Threats Answering Protests, Post Reporter Finds; How Pleas of Infirm Are Treated.

This is the sixth of a series of articles by Duncan Price, of The Post's reportorial staff, who spent three nights and two days as a "patient" at Gallinger Hospital, in order to ascertain the conditions existing there. In previous stories Price told of the conditions and his personal experiences. In the following story he tells about the treatment of various patients.—Editor's note.

By DUNCAN PRICE.

Patients having only physical ailments are often placed in the psychopathic observation department with mental and nervous patients, where their lives are actually endangered.

While I was in the hospital, a well-dressed aged man who had badly diseased feet was admitted. His friends had brought him to the hospital for treatment.

This man was treated like the other patients, really worse. He was given the scanty hospital clothes and, apparently through some error in the routine orders, was locked in a darkened strong room. Later, however, he was released from that room, but was forced to mill around among the various other patients.

He also had to endure the douching and drenching at the hydro-pathy.

That night the man asked to be allowed to sleep in a chair. He explained that he could not sleep in bed because his feet pained him too badly while lying down. He said he always slept in a chair.

"The doctor did not say anything about it," the orderly declared. "If you can sleep in a chair, you can sleep in bed."

The orderly said, however, he did not believe any one could sleep in one of the uncomfortable, iron chairs and he was really sympathetic.

Old Man Sleeps With Addicts.

So the poor old man had to go to bed in the dormitory with the chronic alcoholic and dope addicts and the apparently harmless mental patients.

Another old man, an emaciated, physical and mental wreck, who was practically helpless, and also hopelessly insane, received little attention. He was harmless and would lie in bed contentedly. But he always was routed from his bed in the morning and forced to toddle around the hall and sun parlor, often without any clothes on. Becoming chilled and irritated, he would try to get back to his bed in the dormitory. But he usually was dragged into a darkened room.

BOARD TO OUTLINE GALLINGER INQUIRY

Specific Tasks to Be Given Members at Meeting Expected Today.

HOSPITAL DATA SOUGHT

Another meeting of the Board of Public Welfare probably will be called today for the purpose of assigning members to specific tasks in the investigation of Gallinger Municipal Hospital developing out of revelations of conditions at the institution contained in the series of articles now appearing daily in The Post. It was indicated last night by John Joy Edson, chairman of the board.

Dr. Edgar A. Bookout superintendent of Gallinger, yesterday reiterated a plea which he made several days ago to the Board of Public Welfare that an investigation force consisting of medical authorities from other hospitals, from Washington or anywhere else, be designated to make a thorough investigation of the institution. Whether such outside agents will be called into the institution is not yet known.

Hoover's Hand Suspected In Doran's Dry Law Speech

Prohibition Chief's Address, Following Wickersham Letter, Confirms View President Seeks to Shift Enforcement Burden to States.

Both wet and dry here are now convinced that the Wickersham letter of a month ago and the speech delivered yesterday by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran at the University of Virginia's Institute of Public Affairs, mean one thing—that President Hoover's cardinal principle of dealing with the prohibition problem is to seek to shift the major responsibility for and the expense of enforcement from the Federal Government to the States.

That inference, drawn from the letter which Chairman Wickersham sent a month ago to Gov. Roosevelt, became a conviction yesterday in the light of Dr. Doran's declaration that there "must be a large supplementary police activity and a full functioning of State courts to bring about that degree of criminal enforcement that we all desire," and his assertion that either the States must shoulder more of the burden or else the country must face a centralized Federal control that will take over all functioning under the law, "great and small."

Though the White House was silent about the Wickersham letter and had nothing to say about the Doran speech, it is hardly credible that the prohibition commissioner would have spoken out as he did unless sure of White House approval. Mr. Wickersham might have spoken his mind independently, but both sides to the prohibition controversy are aware that Dr. Doran was not a merely private opinion.

The theory that Dr. Doran's speech was only an answer to that of Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, who denied that the States have any responsibility for enforcing the law, will not hold water.

Deadlock Occasioned by Britain's Demands Is Tighter Than Ever.

SNOWDEN FORWARDS SECOND ULTIMATUM

Chancellor Tells Latins Tomorrow Night Is Time Limit.

OTHER DELEGATIONS FIRM ON YOUNG PLAN

Francoqui Fails in an Effort to Break Impasse by Frank Talk.

The Hague, Aug. 15 (N. Y. W. S.). Breakdown of The Hague conference by the end of this week tonight appears almost unavoidable. The deadlock created by the British demand for a larger share of German reparations than London is accorded under the Young plan is more complete than it has been at any time since the conference convened on August 6.

Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, today sent a "second ultimatum" to the Latin delegations informing them that he would not wait later than tomorrow night for assurance that British demands were to be satisfied. If such assurance was not forthcoming then, he is reported to have said, he saw no use in holding the scheduled meeting Saturday morning of the finance commission to vote on his resolution calling for appointment of a sub-committee to study British objections to the Young plan.

Louis Loucheur, French minister of labor, announced after a meeting of the French, Belgian, Italian and Japanese delegations their continued opposition to British demands and their insistence upon integral acceptance of the Young plan as it stands.

Stands Quite Opposite.

The stands taken by the British and the other delegations are patently so diametrically opposed that only retreat by one or another from their proclaimed positions can save the conference from collapse.

Snowden fixed the end of the week as the extreme limit of the time he is willing to wait for a satisfactory offer from the other allies in a handwritten note which he gave to Henri Jaspar, Premier of Belgium, who has been acting as go-between in private negotiations between the British on one hand and the Italians and French on the other.

The first part of this "ultimatum" was read by Jaspar at a meeting of the French, Belgian, Italian and Japanese delegations. The Belgian premier also repeated the substance of a talk he had had with the British chancellor of the exchequer. Snowden's note, as the British delegation gave it out tonight, contained the following sentence:

"The British delegation does not intend to go on waiting indefinitely for an answer to just British demands, and if an answer is not forthcoming by Friday, it would be useless to call together the financial commission on Saturday."

Complete Redraft Denied.

The note is said further to argue that the Young plan would not necessarily have to be completely redrawn to provide a fresh repatriation of annuities among Germany's creditors.

The four delegations consulted long over this note. Finally Emilio Francoqui, who, as chief Belgian delegate to the committee of experts, collaborated in the drafting of the Young plan at the Paris reparations parley, declared in his energetic way:

"We cannot allow the conference to break up like this. I would like for one to tell Snowden that I did not work at Paris for four months for nothing."

So he visited Snowden—and had the enthusiasm taken out of him at once.

The British ambassador of the exchequer asked France if he had come with an offer.

Snowden Declines Parley.

He answered that he had come to have a straight talk, to which Snowden replied:

"If you have not come with acceptance of the four demands, I am not going to have a straight talk, to which Snowden replied:

"When France returned to the meeting of the four demands, the response he had received, they decided to hold a final meeting tonight with their financial experts to decide upon the definite position they will take when the inevitable showdown comes.

They deliberated for nearly two hours and at the end of that time permitted the following to be given out informally:

"The French, Belgian, Italian and Japanese delegations held a special meeting to consider the terms of the ultimatum confronting the conference and affirmed the position they have previously taken. They consider it necessary to adopt the Young plan as drafted.

"Moreover, the Young plan in its present form is a masterpiece of financial genius. The plan would have to be withdrawn, and without the presence of the experts who played a leading role in settling the terms of the Young plan—without the Americans—we consider it would be impossible."

Favors Given Cited.

The allusion to the "large satisfaction" the British are given in the Young plan, according to financial experts, most of whom worked on the drafting of the plan, in the conditional part of the first ten years of annuities. Some experts claim that these were expressly increased in British favor beyond what must be paid America. It is an open secret that the Young plan—without the Americans—we consider it would be impossible."

Silent on Compromise.

France, in talking with Snowden, did not mention the terms of any possible compromise offer.

Before Snowden's announcement today and the answer it drew from the Young plan, it was thought the conference might be saved from the stigma of the word "breakdown" by finding some formula which would permit it to continue in existence after the disbandment of the principal delegates.

One expedient considered was that subcommittees might be appointed to continue working until October and that then, after the compromise of the assembly of the League of Nations, the full conference might be reconvened to continue grappling with the stupendous economic and political problems bequeathed by the World War. The gravity of today's developments, however, makes the possibility of such an expedient being resorted to seem more remote.

SPEAK-EASY RUMOR STARTS BANK RUN

Clergy, Merchants and Editors Strive to Reassure the Crowd That Seeks Funds.

REFUSED LOAN BLAMED

New York, Aug. 15 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Preachers, business men and Norwegian newspaper publishers, exhorting in Scandinavian languages from the tops of tables, partly stemmed the run on the Bay Shore Savings Bank in Brooklyn.

State Superintendent of Banks Joseph A. Broderick, District Attorney Dodd and President Maurice T. Lewis of the bank, meantime began a determined effort to run down the source of the false rumor of a Lewis death that precipitated the run.

Mothers, some carrying babies, most of them light-haired women, of Nordic extraction, besieged the bank all day. At 3 p. m. President Lewis ordered the doors closed till 9 a. m. tomorrow, over to the energy of seventeen tellers who had worked from 7:30 a. m. paying everyone who asked for cash.

Depositors Are Reassured.

Several hundred depositors were still lined up at paying tellers' windows. An officer of the bank told them they could all get their money. "We are shutting the doors now, it being our usual closing hour," he said. "When you get to the street and find your friends not being admitted, don't tell them the bank is closed. We will open at 9 tomorrow and all will be paid."

In addition to the false story of Lewis' death, several other factors contributed to the run. Reports of closing of three banks in Norway were published in Norwegian papers in Brooklyn.

Non-English speaking depositors read them, and with the long stories of the failures of the City Trust Co. and Clarke Bros. and of United States Attorney Tuttle's prosecution of investment tipsters fresh in their minds, were in the right mood for any sort of unfounded rumor.

Rumor Born in Speak Easy.

A few weeks ago, according to Peter P. Smith, trustee of the bank and its counsel, a man appeared at the bank and asked for a $10,000 loan on a $10,000 house. He was refused.

Following that, Smith understood he went to a speak easy. In the next few days, numerous reports of the bank being in an insolvent condition were spread about the district, and when the sources of the rumors were traced, Smith said a number of cases developed where depositors had heard rumors originating in a speak-easy.

Meantime a rumor spread of the death of Lewis, the president. It did not mention the terms of any possible compromise offer.

PATIENTS' LIVES ENDANGERED BY GALLINGER MENTAL CASES

strong room and locked up. Although he pounded the door and screamed, the orderlies paid little attention to him.

An orderly told me the old man had been there for a considerable time when he should have been at St. Elizabeth's.

He said the man was on the St. Elizabeth's list, but for some unknown reason, or lack of reason, he had not been sent there.

The old man could hardly keep his equilibrium, and often fell. He had a badly blackened and bruised eye which the orderly said he suffered in falling against a door.

There were two insane men strapped to bed in adjoining rooms. The doors to which usually were wide open.

One of them was hopelessly and helplessly insane, while the other usually was quite normal, but often became dangerous.

The hopelessly insane man was emaciated and covered with bed sores; he was a sad sight to behold. All he could do was struggle at his bonds and cry, wail and scream for help. His cries were terrifying and nerve-racking to all, but especially so to the other insane man. The latter weeping times.

"If I was free now," he said, "I might lose control of myself and kill you, although I like you very much."

"You know," he continued, "that is not right. I want to be cured of that."

Of the patients in this department while I was there, a former soldier probably was the most dangerous. He was certainly the most mentally incompetent.

Veteran Has Mania for Work.

He had a mania for work; as a consequence, he was allowed to do everything and order other patients around. He worked just as hard as all day long, as going into a trot. He scrubbed the dining room, bathroom, kitchen and latrine a dozen times a day. He also set the table and washed the dishes.

While working he would shout at other patients, ordering them to stay out of his way.

"Ain't you got no sense? Can't you mind your own business?" he would shout. "Keep out of my way. I work to do."

He often chased other patients out of the kitchen when they had been told to help wash the dishes.

As a result, several of the very nervous patients often became enraged at him that they swore they would smash his face.

This former soldier usually fed the hopelessly insane, bed-strapped man. Once he asked me to help him administer the medicine to the man, and I went with him. When we got into the room, he ordered me out, telling me to mind my own business.

One day he was in the latrine when a dope patient was sitting on the floor in there. He ordered the patient to get out of the latrine, and when the latter failed to comply with his order, he proceeded to throw him out of the way.

The dope patient, who was enraged, but he only swore, as he was not physically able to fight.

After being chased out of the kitchen, one nervous patient swore he would kill the former soldier if it was the last thing he ever did, but another patient who I finally dissuaded him.

One old man who was only slightly nervous, had a severe cold when admitted, yet he was forced to pad around the sick-bed. He nearly froze and had to huddle in the latrine to keep from having an ague.

When taken to the hydrophobic ward with other patients he became the same treatment, and was thoroughly doused with cold water, despite his request for the contrary.

Each morning the night arrivals offered a rare but pitiable sight. Most of them were alcoholic and dope addicts, and they were bedded on the floor anywhere.

One morning there was an old man, inmate of Soldiers' Home, lying on a filthy mattress with only a rubber sheet under his head. Dead drunk, he was a revolting sight, even to the nurse.

An insanely drunk man who had suffered a broken leg two days previous, was brought in one night. He was strapped in bed, but he struggled and yelled in a terrified manner, yet no effort was made to quiet him.

A well-dressed man was asleep with his clothes on in the superior one morning.

The nurse arrived she asked the orderly who the man was.

"I don't know," the orderly said. "The doctor told me to put him to bed in here and release him when he awakened."

"Go," the nurse said, "he must be a privileged character around here. The man apparently was only drunk, so when he awoke he was released."

The doctors threaten to send patients to St. Elizabeth's on the slightest provocation.

While examining a patient who had attempted suicide the doctor was interrogating him concerning the motive. The patient was obstinate.

"I'll send you to St. Elizabeth's for the rest of your life if you don't tell me," the doctor declared.

The patient was aware of the old threat, apparently, for he only replied, "I don't give a damn what you do with me."

Most of the alcoholic and dope patients had police charges pending

Wet Churchman Accused of Practicing Medicine Without State License.

ONCE DRY LEAGUE CHIEF GARMENT JUST WASHED

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The Attorney General's office announced today that it was going to proceed against the Rev. Dr. James Empringham on charges of illegally operating a clinic in which patients were subjected to physical examinations.

The charges will be practicing medicine without a license and it will be based on complaints of doctors and clients that Dr. Empringham, although he held no license, operated an X-ray machine, gave advice on diet and conducted examinations.

The action must await return to this State of Dr. Empringham, a former superintendent of the Anti-Slavery League in New York, who was said to be in the West.

SPEED TEST BALKED AGAIN BY WEATHER

Mystery Plane Must Leave New York Wednesday for English Races.

EAST WIND IS NEEDED

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Adverse weather today again defeated the hopes of Lieut. Alfred J. Williams to take into the air for the first time his mystery plane, the Mercury racer with which he hopes to reach a speed of approximately 400 miles an hour and win the Schneider Cup.

The plane has been weather bound at the U. S. Naval Academy, where it was brought for tests, for a week. It rests on its cradle at the academy dock waiting to be taken into the air the moment weather conditions are favorable.

Meanwhile, the time left for the test is rapidly slipping away. It must be on board the Leviathan at New York next Wednesday if it is to reach England in time to compete for the United States in the cup races.

"An east wind and I will fly," Lieut. Williams said this afternoon as he admitted the wind had defeated him another day.

Lieut. Williams has remained constantly with the plane for a week, ready to take it into the air as soon as he feels weather conditions justify. Since the first of the week the surface of the Severn River has been rough and wind has remained constantly in the north and northwest.

Today he made two trips into the air in Navy planes to test the velocity of the wind. The flights apparently convinced him that it would be unwise to take his untitled 4,000-pound 24-cylinder plane into the air.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, David B. Ingalls, yesterday said that the racing plane is the nearest approach to perfection of this type that can be attempted at the present time, and the energy, enthusiasm and ability of Williams as a pilot insures that the best possible results will be obtained.

Fred Towers Kills Self in Maryland

Brother of Baltimorean Is Found Shot in Head, Pistol in Hand.

Denton, Md., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Fred Towers, brother of Alvin Karpis, of Baltimore, and of former State Senator Lawrence B. Towers, of this town, was found in his office today with a bullet wound in his temple and a revolver in his hand.

He had shot himself a moment before he was found. The physician called, Dr. Fred N. Nichols, the physician who was called. He died a few minutes later.

On a table near his wife's letter addressed to his brother, Lawrence Towers, Magistrate Henry R. Lewis, whose business it is to act as coroner in the case, said that an inquest was unnecessary; that he and the physician had decided that the case was undoubtedly one of suicide.

Worry over the illness of his wife, who is a patient in a Baltimore hospital, is said to have led to the act, although the contents of the letter to the brother have not been revealed.

Brooklyn Matador Hits 'Home Run' With Bull

Madrid, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Sidney Franklin, of Brooklyn, N. Y., showing to sign of the bull in the lion's den recently, tonight killed the first bull of the "career" with one thrust of his sword, which was comparable to knocking a home run with the bases full.

All other matadors in the program required several thrusts. Franklin took two for his second animal.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 15.—Atlanta, which went for Hoover last year by a small majority, while Georgia was going about 30,000 for Smith, is to stage a curtain raiser to the Bishop Cannon battle in Virginia, if Hoover Alexander, prominent Hooverite, carries out his present intention of running for Congress.

The death of Representative Leslie J. Steele early this month creates a vacancy for which there will be a primary on September 11, and an election on October 2, just about a month before the counting of ballots in Virginia.

Though he died early in his second term, Mr. Steele became almost a national figure in 1926 when he defeated "Willie" Upshaw in the primary in this same district. Upshaw came back last year on the crest of the anti-Smith wave, but Steele defeated him by a big majority in the Democratic primary.

HOOPER ALEXANDER, who has told friends he will carry the banner for the anti-antagonization forces in the election, has long been prominent in the State. He was a member of the Legislature and President Wilson appointed him U. S. District Attorney on the recommendation of Senator Hoke Smith. Alexander was one of the Smith political lieutenants. He has no more use for the powers that be in the Democratic organization in Georgia than Bishop Cannon has for Gov. Byrd in Virginia. Intensely dry, he has not forgotten them for taking off their coats last year for Gov. Smith. Incidentally the Georgia organization did a pretty fair job in keeping Steele regular, for there was tremendous anti-Smith sentiment, and little enthusiasm for Smith even among the regulars. The organization not only won, and though the majority was small, they got out the biggest vote Georgia ever cast for a presidential candidate. They did it without taking a single cent of money from national Democratic headquarters. So Georgia Democrats feel no sense of responsibility as John J. Raskob struggles to pay off the deficit. They did not help to make it.

There is little to do with the present situation, but the Georgia leaders had a motive in working so hard for Smith, and in refusing to take money from the national committee. This motive was to win the gratitude of the Tammany leaders, and of Smith admirers in the North-east against the next Democratic national convention. The Georgia leaders are very serious about the possibility that Senator Walter F. George may be the Democratic standard bearer at the next time. His candidacy at Houston was pushed for no other purpose.

HOOPER'S HAND SUSPECTED IN DORAN DRY LAW SPEECH

ter. Doran's speech was prepared and mimeographed far in advance—before he knew what Ritchie would say.

Speech Carefully Prepared.

Moreover, it was apparently prepared with great care to set the State enforcement kite flying higher than the national governor had let it out.

Probably it would be more accurate to infer that Gov. Ritchie, sensing the way the wind has been blowing, and the threat of a speech on the crucial issue of State responsibility, he implied. He thinks the States are morally bound to cooperate in every way.

That opened up the governor's favorite theme—State rights, for which he has campaigned in season and out. Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, most ardent of latter-day dry champions, instantly picked up his ears at the Ritchie speech and threatened yesterday to answer it in a formal bill from his office. He would even have the governor in joint session on the crucial issue of State responsibility, he implied. He thinks the States are morally bound to cooperate in every way.

Conversations of Dawes and MacDonald Suggested as Cut Indication.

1927 PLAN SUPERSEDED

(Associated Press.)

The suggestion was put forward in official circles here last night that the naval limitation "conversations" now going on between Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and American Ambassador Dawes may result in an even more drastic reduction in the cruiser strength of the two countries than contemplated at the Geneva conference of 1927.

The purpose of the conference at the White House Wednesday between President Hoover and the officials of the Navy and State Departments who are dealing with the question, was to acquaint all of the interested officials with the situation to date.

Parley Is Considered.

While the State Department officials have been considering mainly the present Dawes-MacDonald negotiations, the naval experts have been studying all feasible plans to prepare for the new naval parity.

Five interested powers, United States, England, France, Italy and Japan.

The Chief Executive is known to hold the view that the situation is essential before this country would enter a five-power conference. There have been reports current in Washington that such a parity was likely to be held in December, probably in London. The President's conference also has given rise to the opinion he is hopeful for an agreement between Dawes and MacDonald on the subject of naval parity.

As far as America and England are concerned within a few weeks.

Speech Carefully Prepared.

Moreover, it was apparently prepared with great care to set the State enforcement kite flying higher than the national governor had let it out.

Probably it would be more accurate to infer that Gov. Ritchie, sensing the way the wind has been blowing, and the threat of a speech on the crucial issue of State responsibility, he implied. He thinks the States are morally bound to cooperate in every way.

That opened up the governor's favorite theme—State rights, for which he has campaigned in season and out. Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, most ardent of latter-day dry champions, instantly picked up his ears at the Ritchie speech and threatened yesterday to answer it in a formal bill from his office. He would even have the governor in joint session on the crucial issue of State responsibility, he implied. He thinks the States are morally bound to cooperate in every way.

MacDonald Is Expected To Visit U. S. in Oct.

London, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Authoritative quarters stated today that the naval disarmament negotiations between London and Washington were proceeding satisfactorily.

It is hoped that Premier MacDonald will go to the United States in October after a visit to Geneva for the meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations. It is expected that he will then be able to discuss tentative arrangements for a five-power conference.

It is pointed out that further arrangements will be reached when Premier MacDonald meets Ambassador Dawes at Elgin on August 23, when they probably will be present at a luncheon given by that municipality.

Farmers Attend
Series of MeetingsVirginians Gather to Hear Experts Discuss Value of Pastures.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 15.—A series of agricultural meetings is now being held in Southside Virginia to familiarize farmers with the value of pasture and the live-at-home movement. All meetings are under the auspices of District Agent F. S. Farrar and the county agents.

The first of the series was held yesterday at the farm of J. G. Jefferson, near Amelia County courthouse. An exceptionally large crowd was present. Sam Preston of V. P. I., spoke on the subject "Soils and Hay Crops." Prof. Beaves discussed cream production in Southside Virginia. W. R. McNeill's talk on "Market for Cream" was followed by a speech on "Economic Production and Petersburg as a Market," by K. N. Ellis, agricultural secretary of the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting today was held on the lawn of Blackstone High School. Yesterday's speakers appeared on today's program.

County Agent E. G. Stokes will be in charge of the meeting tomorrow at the farm of John R. Hobbes, near Victoria, Lunenburg County.

GROUND LOOPS

C. FRANCIS JENKINS.

JENKINS UNINJURED
AS PLANE IS UPSET

Inventor's New Monoplane
Ground Loops With Radio
Expert at Stick.

IS EXPERIENCED PILOT

C. Francis Jenkins, noted Washington inventor of radio and television improvements, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday morning when his new Stinson Detroiter monoplane, which he was piloting, went into a "ground loop" and turned over as he was landing at the Congressional Airport on the Rockville pike.

Spectators, who were watching him land, rushed to Jenkins' assistance, but found him scrambling out of the cockpit, smiling. He had been thrown against a brace when the plane turned over and sustained no injury, but refused medical attention. He termed the accident "trivial," and later motored to his home at 5502 Sixteenth street northwest, after giving directions to his mechanic for the repair of the plane.

The right wheel of the plane's landing gear was broken off, the tail badly dented and the propeller blades bent by the accident. Attendees at the field attributed the mishap to a strong wind which whirled under the left wing of the large bi-monoplane as it struck the field on a slight incline.

Jenkins, who was alone in the plane at the time of the accident, is considered an expert pilot, and has made numerous flights over Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, and recently flew to Indiana in the plane.

Brother Abdas Buried
At Amundale, Md.

Special to The Washington Post.
Cumberland, Md., Aug. 15.—The body of Brother Abdas, for the last two years professor of English at LaSalle Institute here, who died suddenly at the Christian Brothers summer school at Ocean City, N. J., was brought to the novitiate house at Amundale, Md., where burial took place.

Brother Abdas, whose family name was William Comerford, was born in Kilkenny County, Ireland, and was 60 years old. One of his early assignments was in charge of St. John's College, Washington, D. C., and he was transferred to the presidency of LaSalle College, Philadelphia, in 1903. Later he was appointed to the presidency of Calvert Hall College, Baltimore. Owing to poor health he was assigned to LaSalle.

ANNUAL BARBECUE
HELD BY SHRINERS

Ali Ghan Temple's Fete Is Largely Attended at Cumberland.

GOOD PROGRAM GIVEN

Special to The Washington Post.
Cumberland, Md., Aug. 15.—About 1,800 persons attended the annual barbecue of Ali Ghan Temple, Ancient Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at the Cumberland fair grounds yesterday. Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties also are included in the membership of this temple and they were largely represented by Shriners and members of their families.

The shooting match was won by the Cumberland Shriners, who scored 199 to Hagerstown's 186. The members of the teams were:

Hagerstown—Harry Taylor, 46; J. E. Celler, 38; Dr. W. C. Sabely, 38; Dr. William P. Martin, 35; H. L. Hildebrand, 35; Cumberland, Charles J. Simpson, 48; Dr. George O. Sharrett, 45; Dr. William A. Grace, 45; Arthur B. Gibson, 37; Arthur H. Hoffa, 36.

Other scores follow: Dr. Homer B. Walker, 31; Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, 13; Hidevohl, 29; Cumberland, Charles J. Simpson, 48; Dr. George O. Sharrett, 45; Dr. William A. Grace, 45; Arthur B. Gibson, 37; Arthur H. Hoffa, 36.

Cumberland won the baseball game over Hagerstown, 16 to 15. The batters were: Cumberland, John Morgan and Albert Wiebel and Fred Mills; Hagerstown, Potentate Roy Letter and Ernie Mills, J. D. Aldridge, of Frostburg, and Gerard Everette were umpires.

In the horseshoe pitching contest, City Commissioner Frank Billmeyer and Alvin R. Serf defeated Charles A. Smouse and Arthur H. Hoffa, 15 to 14.

Genuine barbecue fare was served with many delicacies for the women and children. A group of ten colored entertainers added to the program with band and orchestral music and comic stunts. Ali Ghan Temple Band gave a concert and the chanters of the temple sang. Circus stunts and clown acts were presented in front of the grand stand by Shriners. Many prizes were awarded children in contests. Following an elaborate display of fireworks, there was dancing in the pavilion until midnight.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

WHEAT INSPECTION
CLOSES AT EASTON

Service Proves of Great Value to Farmers in Maryland.

LARGE AREA IS COVERED

Special to The Washington Post.
Easton, Md., Aug. 15.—The grain inspection office and laboratory in Easton, which has been open in the courthouse since the first of July, closed today after a very successful season. This is the first time that inspection service for wheat has been offered in the East outside of the terminal markets of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Easton office has been under the Federal supervision for New York and directly under Baltimore.

The work has been sponsored and the expenses paid by the Maryland State Department of Markets and the Maryland Agricultural College. Easton is very fortunate to have been selected as the place for starting this service because it has been of great benefit to local farmers. The new men, even though it was in the experimental stage this year.

The inspectors made official samples and inspections on samples amounting to 100,000 bushels of wheat all within Talbot County. In addition they established grades on samples brought into the laboratory taken from at least 50,000 bushels more. A few of these came from Queen Anne and Caroline Counties. One sample was sent here from Somerset County.

Talbot County raised about 850,000 bushels of wheat this year. It is easy to see that the inspection service reached a very good portion of the crop. While most of the inspections were made near Easton, every district in the county was reached.

Of the 135 certificates which were issued, 50 were of Eastern district, 20 in Talbot County; 15 in Chaptin district; 6 in St. Michaels district, and 2 in Bay Hundred district. A few samples came from other counties on the Eastern Shore. About 20 certificates were issued on car load lots and elevator bins of mixed lots of wheat which could not be identified with the farms on which they were grown.

Many Talbot County farmers visited the office in the courthouse and are now familiar with the equipment which was set up there. This is being packed up this week and returned to Baltimore and College Park, Md., from where it came. If wheat inspection is desired next year by Talbot County farmers, it will be necessary for those who are interested to make the fact known to the department of the University of Maryland, which conducted the work, and to State officials. It will be necessary to raise the fees and put the work on a self-supporting basis in the future.

MOUNTAIN SCHOOL'S CHAPEL STONE LAID

Cram Architect of Edifice at Growing Blue Ridge Institution.

BISHOP GIBSON HONORED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 15.—The corner stone of the Gibson Memorial Chapel at the Blue Ridge Industrial School, located in Bacon Hollow, Orange County, about 25 miles northwest of Charlottesville, was laid yesterday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies.

Bishop H. St. George Tucker, of Richmond, was in charge of the exercises, which were attended by many Episcopalian ministers in the mountain work.

The plan of the chapel was drawn by Ralph Cram, of Boston, and presented to the school. It will be built of native stone, with a seating capacity of about 825, and choir space for 35. It will provide for the growing needs of the school for many years to come. The cost will probably be $20,000. As most of the building materials will be supplied from the school farm, and construction done by day labor, much of it by the pupils and employees of the school, the cost will be kept down to the lowest figure possible. Construction will proceed as rapidly as possible.

The chapel will be a memorial to the Right Rev. Robert A. Gibson, bishop of Virginia from 1897 to 1919. He was deeply interested in the mountain work and gave it every help and encouragement. He made regular visits to the field, staying as long as a week at a time, and frequently walking to some little out-of-the-way mission to preach and administer confirmation. He took keen interest in the establishment of the industrial school of Virginia, and was a staunch friend and supporter to the day of his death.

Blue Ridge Industrial School was opened January, 1919, with 12 boarding and 20 day pupils, 4 employees and 1 building. Today there are 128 boarding and 30 day pupils, 19 employees, 600 acres of land and 19 buildings. The property is valued at $110,000.

Admission to the school is restricted to country children of limited means, preferably from isolated mountainous sections. The course of instruction is from primary through high school, accredited under the Virginia State Board of Education. The school was in operation four years before a pupil was ready for high school. Today there are 48 in high school.

In June, 1918, eight years after opening, the school had its first graduates—3 girls from the neighborhood. At the present time the graduates number 47. Of the 29 girls graduated up to 1928, 8 are married, 6 teach, 2 nursing, 5 in college or university, 3 in business, 1 dead and 3 at home. Of the 18 boys graduates, 3 are at college or university, 1 at the University of Virginia has recently won a competitive examination scholarship valued at $500. —a student for the military, 2 farming, 3 in business and 4 teaching.

Many pupils who did not graduate have done well as teachers, nurses and home builders. Two have married Episcopal clergymen.

The total cost of a boarding pupil is $250 a session. One-fourth this amount is paid by fees collected from pupils, parents or patrons; one-fourth by appropriations, and the balance by voluntary contributions. No servants are employed, all routine work being done by pupils.

Agriculture Experts Seek Japanese Beetle

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Aug. 15.—The Federal Government is searching for the Japanese beetle, which has been found in this city where four "scouts" from the Department of Agriculture today opened a survey of rose bushes and grape vines, in particular, looking for the beetle. The men are E. C. Johnson, K. E. Forrest, N. T. Rustic and J. D. Ramsay.

They came here from Richmond and Alexandria, Va., and other points in the Shenandoah Valley. They found some beetles at Alexandria but practically none in Richmond, indicating it has not gone that far. The beetle's partiality for fruits, including grapes and the rose vines led the search here.

SNOWDEN'S DEMANDS.

Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, is giving the world a timely and much-needed lesson in the art of frank, open and aboveboard diplomacy. His demands on behalf of the British have brought resentment and dismay to those statesmen who have relied upon the Young plan to reap advantages for their nationals, and the cry has gone forth that Britain is wrecking the reparations settlement, checking the progress of humanity and retarding the peace of the world.

But the cry becomes feeble by the time it reaches Snowden's ears. It is apparently drowned out by the persistent cries of British needs, British justice and the Anglo-Saxon conception of fair play. Snowden is proceeding on the assumption that he represents the British people and that his main duty lies in meeting British desires in so far as the situation permits. He is, therefore, fighting with his back to the wall for his own people and is not in the least disturbed by the coalition of internationalism arrayed against him.

The curious fact is that Snowden probably will win. His plea on behalf of Britain is backed by a brand of national spirit and blunt sincerity that cannot be checked by protestations ostensibly based on international good will but in reality prompted by self-interest. The difference is that other statesmen are out for the interests of their own peoples and are using internationalism as a cloak for their designs, while Snowden is fighting for the British and has the courage to say so.

Why is there anything sacred about the series of recommendations drawn up by international financiers after weeks of bargaining and secret intrigue and called the Young plan? The fact that the agreement was accompanied by world-wide torrents of inspired publicity does not change the effect it would have on the British people if it were now accepted by the British government. Mr. Snowden has not allowed the glamour of a supposed solution to dull his keen power of analysis in assessing the value of the so-called plan.

He wants to know why France gets all the unconditional German annuities, amounting to between 500,000,000 and 600,000,000 gold marks annually, and why the British get none of these annuities of ready-cash value, representing one-third of the total German payments. And he says flatly that Britain will not accept any such proposition.

Snowden also does not see why British industry and the British workingman should suffer as a consequence of the agreement respecting German deliveries in kind. The private experts admitted that these deliveries worked a hardship on Britain when they agreed to eliminate them after a ten-year period, but Snowden sees no reason for the British to suffer for ten years. Before he will agree to these readjustments he wants to have guarantees that British interests will be adequately protected. And he sees no reason for France to be accorded such a huge share of the total German annuities, amounting to more than 50 per cent, while Britain remains with an allotment of about 19 per cent, which is lower than the figure under the Dawes plan.

France reminds Snowden that the British government agreed to the recommendations of the private experts and adds that the Young plan is now "an indivisible whole" which can not be touched without an implication of bad faith.

As a matter of fact, the bad faith might be implied from the statement that the British government had in reality committed itself to the undertaking because, when the experts were in session, the world was assured again and again that it was a conference of private financial experts wholly divorced from governmental consideration and control. But this was, of course, part and parcel of the camouflage which has so persistently surrounded international bargaining since the end of the World War. Snowden declares that the conservative government of Great Britain agreed to the Young plan over his protest and he refuses to be bound. He has the support of the British people in his stand.

So far all pressure used to sway Snowden from his course has failed. Son of a British workman and brought up in a hard school of life, Snowden has fought his way upward by dint of his fearlessness and constant battle for what he believes to be right. He has lost his health in the battle and requires the aid of two canes to support his frail form. But he has not lost his fire of enthusiasm for British interests, or his idealism tempered with an uncanny faculty for eliminating international sham. His example on behalf of his country might well be followed with profit elsewhere.

A $46,000,000 BUDGET.

Although the $48,315,000 tentative budget set by the District Commissioners provided no more than a starvation diet for the District, the Budget Bureau has ordered a further lopping off of some $2,000,000. The tentative maximum allocation for the District in President Hoover's 1931 financial program, says the bureau, has been fixed at $46,337,000, necessitating a cut from the Commissioners' figure amounting to $1,978,000. If this amount will not provide for the absolute necessities, the bureau says further, supplemental statements will have to be filed showing the additional amounts needed.

It is not easy to see what connection exists between the President's economy program and the District budget. The government will contribute to the cost of running the District exactly $9,000,000 and the balance of the budget will be made up by the taxpayers. The $48,000,000 figure was set by the Commissioners as the amount that would be obtained by continuing the present tax rate, adding to the revenues obtained therefrom the $9,000,000 lump sum, and by utilizing a part of the surplus held to the District's credit in the Treasury. This surplus is made up entirely of taxpayers' money. The figure set by the Budget Bureau amounts to slightly less than the estimated total revenues of the District for 1931, making no provision for utilization of the surplus. It will be remembered that the District came in for considerable criticism not long ago for having permitted a surplus to stack up in the Treasury.

The District of Columbia occupies a most unenviable and difficult position. It is not allowed to determine its needs and make provision for their satisfaction according to the income available. Yet Congress consistently refuses to recognize its responsibility for the welfare of the District by assuming a fair share of the cost of its maintenance. The Budget Bureau makes the District conform to the national economy program, depriving its citizenry of needed facilities and services. And Congress continues, year after year, to dole out a miserable $9,000,000 as the Government's contribution to the cost of running and maintaining the Capital City.

The Budget Bureau's suggestion that, in the event its budget figure will not provide the minimum necessities, supplemental estimates may be filed, amounts to an admission of the inadequacy of the smaller figure. Unquestionably, the District will have to look to supplemental appropriations for funds to satisfy many pressing needs in 1931.

CRITICISM OF JURIES.

A large majority of students of the American judicial system will agree with Prof. Raymond Moley, of Columbia University, in deploring the insignificance of juries in the administration of criminal justice. Juries, prosecuting attorneys, and even defense attorneys have usurped a large share of the functions which should be reserved for judges. The learning and the judgment of the court are of vital importance in deciding only a few cases. In the regular routine of State tribunals the judge is merely the referee.

Prof. Moley would take the authority of deciding the guilt or innocence of accused persons from prosecuting attorneys and juries and reinvest it in the judges. He would make it the judges' duty to determine whether or not the defendant is guilty, but the sentence would be passed by a board of experts. All sentences would be indeterminate, on the theory that the time each person should serve for a particular crime depends upon the progress made during incarceration.

Severe criticism has been heaped upon the jury system from many sources. Students of criminal justice are generally agreed that under present conditions an ignorant jury becomes the tool of clever lawyers in setting criminals free. But it is not yet determined that the usefulness of juries has passed. The defects lie in methods employed to select jurors and in the conduct of cases before them. The American people will not likely be willing to give up the right of "trial by jury" until the failure of the system under changed conditions has been proved. Some of the States have made decided improvements by selecting higher grade jurors.

The relatively inferior position of the American judge is a subject that certainly needs attention. Many cases are left almost entirely to the judgment of the prosecuting attorney. If he thinks the evidence insufficient to secure a conviction, the case is dismissed on his recommendation. If the case is difficult, he frequently agrees to prosecute the defendant on a lesser charge providing the defendant pleads guilty. Rigid sentences are often fixed by law, so the judge has little to say.

This weakness is much more apparent in the State than in the Federal courts, one reason being that the judiciary is in serious need of strengthening in most, if not all, of the States. Procedure should be readjusted to throw more responsibility for punishment of criminals on the judges. The administration of justice can never be scientific and efficient until a greater degree of expert knowledge and seasoned judgment is brought to bear on individual cases.

SLAVERY IN LIBERIA?

New York Dispatch to the Toronto Mail and Empire.

Liberia, founded by Americans in 1822 to provide a democratic refuge for Negro freedmen, has so far failed of its founders' plans that it is now virtually an unlimited autocracy which, through a system of forced labor, has reinstated slavery, according to T. J. R. Faulkner, who is now in this country after more than 35 years in the African republic.

Mr. Faulkner was defeated for the Presidency of Liberia in the 1927 elections by Charles D. B. King, who is now serving his third term of four years in that office.

In 1919, King, running unopposed, received 4,000 votes. In 1923 his opponent, Harmon, received 7,000 votes and he claimed 40,000. In eight years the total of votes rose from 4,000 to 211,000.

The ascendancy of King, according to Mr. Faulkner, has enabled him to assess arbitrary fines and impose arbitrary imprisonments. Thus the attorney for the People's Party in the election case was fined $50 for "contempt of court." Judges are appointed by the president and hold office at his pleasure.

Mr. Faulkner unconditionally corroborates the charges in Raymond Leslie Buell's book, "The Native Problem in Africa," that the Liberian government enforces a system of virtual slavery upon natives from the back country, impressed to work on the roads. Not only are these workers not paid, but they are compelled to furnish their own tools and food and rice and palm oil for the overseers, who often treat them brutally.

The government has never consented to investigate charges that the natives were beaten, in some cases fatally, on these gangs, and the one native commissioner who attempted to bring the situation to the government's attention was promptly relieved of his duties. The laborers are subject to "fines" for various petty offenses and are sometimes compelled to sell their food to pay these assessments.

In addition, the chiefs are oppressed by the "hut" tax. Polygamy is almost an economic necessity for the aborigines of the interior, and the men set their families up in different establishments to cultivate various plots of ground. A tax of $1 is levied by the government on each "hut." Transportation facilities are so bad that though the interior is rich agriculturally, and living costs along the coast approximate those of New York, only a small percentage of the needs of the coast inhabitants are supplied from the interior, some produce being carried out on the heads of natives.

As a consequence, many of the back country natives hardly see a dollar from one year's end to the next, and the chiefs who are responsible for the hut taxes of their tribes are often fined or imprisoned for being unable to raise the amount demanded by the government.

The government also ships natives to the nearby Spanish Island of Fernando Po, drafting workers from the tribes of the interior. The premium of $50 per native paid by the Spanish planters to the government officials concerned in making the shipments is divided among them, Mr. Faulkner says. While it is to the interest of the planters to treat these laborers well, there is no question of obtaining their consent before shipping them.

Mr. Faulkner is by no means the ordinary type of embittered patriot. He was born in North Carolina and educated there and at Cooper Union in New York. He went to Liberia as an engineer and has served the country in various capacities as an engineer and a citizen. He was wartime mayor of Monrovia, the capital and most important city of the country, which has a population of 5,000 to 6,000. He brought in the first electric lights, the first telephone, built the first five miles of road, owned the first motion picture theater and still owns the only ice plant and the only hotel in the country.

Three of his brothers, two engineers and a doctor, have died in Liberia.

Since the United States took over the Liberian debt outstanding to France and England this country has maintained a number of officials to look in on the conduct of Liberia's financial affairs. These five officials draw about $50,000 from Liberia's annual revenues of less than $1,000,000.

This circumstance, coupled with the fact that President King has raised his own salary to $15,000 and that of his 10 senators and 21 representatives to $2,000, partially accounts for the fact that the country is making no extraordinary financial progress, Mr. Faulkner believes.

It Won't Be Long Now.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A DETECTIVE STORY.
Somewhere along the Biford Down
Or Biford moor or glen,
A traveler on his way to town
Passed three wild-looking men.
A quarter of a mile away
He found a lump of lifeless clay,
And stooping down, he recognized
Sir Henry Wot, whom he despised.

Sir Henry owned the village bank,
A miser through and through;
Although he boasted noble rank,
His past nobody knew.
But from his history it appears
He'd been respectable for years,
Although 'twas hinted in his time
His hands had once been steeped
With crime.

Two days before a dreadful row
By chance was overheard,
Which seems to be important now,
So strangely it occurred.
A man no one had seen before
Opened Sir Henry's office door, Shouting: "I've come to get my share!"

Sir Henry fainting in his chair,
The town policeman snatched things,
As town policemen do;
They lacked the wit the novice brings
For tracing down a clue.

They knew Sir Henry Wot was dead,
But otherwise were quite misled,
Because they searched for persons who Seemed likeliest such crimes to do.

But Arthur Wise, a bright young man,
Who scoffed at Scotland Yard,
To solve the problem had a plan,
Nor did he find it hard.
"I'll land the guilty one," said he,
"Somewhere in chapter thirty-three.
The man who murdered Henry Wot
Was mentioned once and then forgot."

Why Limit Yourself to a One-Horse Job if You Have a Ninety-Horse Motor?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

Water pours over ten thousand falls and serves no useful purpose because its power is not harnessed.

Millions of men fail to achieve anything worth while because they do not harness the power that is in them.

Do you doubt your possession of unused powers? Then explain the significance of these two incidents.

You are frightened by an alarm of fire and carry from the house a piece of furniture you could not have lifted an hour before.

You are burdened with anxiety, and in your effort to find a solution for your problem you call to mind a fact long since forgotten.

In one case you employ a physical ability and in the other a mental resource never called upon by your normal way of life.

You become for the moment a superman. For one brief instant you are all that you might be. And the fact that unsuspected powers come to your rescue in an emergency is proof that you possess reserve power sufficient to make you a much abler man if only you knew how to harness it.

The truth is, you are two individuals in one—two minds in one—as wise men knew millenniums ago, and you fail of your best because you depend on the weaker one and make no use of the stronger.

Your subconscious mind is the storehouse and power house; your conscious mind is a bee gathering honey, an office boy looking up records, a foreman directing workers.

Your subconscious mind stores away and preserves the knowledge you gain; it operates the organs and muscles that function without direction from your conscious mind; it controls your nervous system.

And, most important of all, it directs the activities that are called habits.

By exercising your conscious mind you learn to dress. Thereafter your subconscious mind directs your hands while your thoughts are elsewhere and the business is completed without direction from your conscious mind.

Just as the subconscious mind directs your adrenal glands and multiplies your strength in time of need, or reports a hurt and sends white corpuscles to mend it, or presents "forgotten" facts when you have need of them, so it will direct you wisely, bravely and profitably in all matters if you will teach it the habit.

By conscious effort you lift your hat to a dozen ladies; therefore your subconscious mind will direct the courtesy while you are thinking of your business affairs.

By conscious effort you can learn to drive a car, speak the truth, march against unfire, act unselfishly, choose the heroic way, speak eloquently, make decisions quickly, do what is wise.

And once the lesson is learned, your subconscious mind will direct you to act wisely, gallantly, ably and honorably as though by instinct.

And doesn't seem to mind it;
When she gets home, more to roam,
She'll get a chance to find it.

Mary had a little limb,
It was as white as snow,
And everywhere that Mary went
The limb was sure to show.
She went down by the sea to rest,
She got a burn—and how!
The little limb is tanned so brown
You'd never know it now.

Hey, diddle, diddle,
The drum and the fiddle,
The piano, flute and bassoon;
The orchestra swell
At this summer hotel
Can play anything but a tune.

Little Miss Muffet;
Sat on a tuffet;
Feeding an August day;
Along came a fellow
Whose line was so mellow
It frightened Miss Muffet away.

Jack and Jill ran up a hill
To load beside the water;
They couldn't pay and had to stay.
And serve as maid and porter.

WHAT TO DO!
United States Naval Academy officials are wondering what the naval world is coming to, says the Minneapolis Tribune. A certain woman representative in the House has announced that she is seriously considering naming young women as her appointees to Annapolis. She observes that women have entered many fields traditionally supposed to be closed to the fair sex. But now that women are successfully entering the factories and the professions, she sees no reason why they should be discriminated against in the Navy.

The midshipmen are said to be grinning over the idea. They have no objections at all to a little feminine company. In fact, the first maid who enters the academy is said to be assured of a royal welcome. But the officials themselves are confronted with the problem of distracting the sound patients from turning Annapolis into a boys' and girls' school. And this particular problem, it appears, has never been dealt with in any treatises written on naval strategy. We have no special solution for them, but must confess to some amusement over their distress.

It appears to me that from a humanitarian standpoint it would be cruel to treat animals in this manner.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Now That Left-Turn Baiting is Concluded an Education Campaign to Acquaint Visitors With Local Regulations Should Be Undertaken.

To the Editor of The Post-Sun: Now that voting for the preferred type of left turn is over and forgotten, I would like to make a suggestion regarding the perplexing position many of the tourists who visit Washington are put in. As every one knows, there are any number of tourists who do not understand our method of making a left turn and usually these people make or attempt to make the turn from the middle of the street. Nine times out of ten the traffic officer waves them over to the side of the street to get in position to make the turn properly. Of course the strangers do not grasp the meaning of the officer's waving and, consequently, instead of making the turn they usually keep right on their original course and thus do not gain knowledge that will be helpful to them when next they wish to make a left turn.

Why can't officers beckon motorists to their platform, explain how the left turn is made and cure the wrong once and for all? As I stated before, one officer out of every ten does explain the turn to the stranger, but why can't they all do that, that is, if the conditions are not so heavy that a minute of explanation will cause a traffic snarl?

If the officers feel that it would take up too much of their time explaining our exceptional left turn the A. A. A. could probably arrange to get out a folder explaining the turn to all visitors. On streets where the traffic is controlled by lights, the out-of-town motorist invariably makes the left turn in the wrong manner, and thus exposes himself to the danger of being hit by through traffic, whereas if a folder explaining this one peculiarity could be gotten to the visitors' matters would be helped a great deal.

WASHINGTONIAN.

Where Is the Brave Soul to Lead the Masculine Dress Reform Movement?

To the Editor of The Post-Sun: Woman has lost all timidity along the line of clothing herself. Women are termed the weaker sex, but in some respects they are a great deal stronger than men and deserving of comfort is one of their strong points. They seem to think conventions are as nothing compared to comfort.

Man is still timid about showing his knees or the upper portion of his chest. But why should man suffer from the amount of clothing he wears when the weaker sex goes about with so very few clothes. The day is certainly coming when man will be seen on the streets coatless, tieless, pantless (that is without the long pants which he is wearing now) and maybe he will even go so far as to be sockless or at least wear a form of sock which can be turned down. The only drawback to this form of comfort for man is finding the one with enough initiative or fearlessness to start the fad. Let a small group of men appear who are attired in such a comfortable fashion and in practically no time all men will go around during the summer months without feeling the heat one-tenth as much as they do now.

UNCOMFORTABLE.

Man's Bodily Structure Harmonizes With the Spirit That Gives It Life.

To the Editor of The Post-Sun: William H. Blake, instructor in educational dramatics at Teachers College, Columbia University, has discovered after many years of research that posture is an excellent index to character. He can determine a person's salient characteristics by watching how that person holds himself, the way he walks, the stiffness of his knees, or the position of his elbows.

Character is a very interesting study. I know several men who have uncanny ability to tell a person all about his idiosyncracies by just looking at him, or feeling his skull. It is not surprising that Prof. Blake has determined a striking relationship between posture and character. It leads to the conclusion that in most cases human bodies are expressions of personalities. The body acts and grows as the mind thinks, and it is not strange that a keen observer can tell what forces shaped each one of us as he is. Of course we are revealed in our posture, in our talk, in our actions, as well as in our physical appearance. The quality of our work and the expressions on our faces. What kind of creature would man be if his bodily structure did not harmonize with the spirit that gives it life?

Mental Patients Said to Be Neglected While Awaiting Examination.

To the Editor of The Post-Sun: While on the subject of the Gallinger Hospital, I wish to call your attention to the treatment of the unfortunate mental patients that are brought to the court from the above hospital for trial before being committed to St. Elizabeth's.

These trials are usually held on a Friday. The patients, in this particular instance about which I am writing, were brought from the hospital to the Criminal Court about 9 a. m. The patients were then kept in a room adjoining the courtroom until the presiding judge made his appearance, which was about 11 a. m. There was quite a number of male and female patients, and the court proceedings lasted until 2:45 p. m. During this period the court was recessed for luncheon at 1:30 p. m. But no one from the hospital or any one from the court thought that it was necessary to give the mentally unbalanced patients something to eat or drink. And it happened to be a very warm day.

It appears to me that from a humanitarian standpoint it would be cruel to treat animals in this manner.

Mrs. Rogers in Capital for
Call of DutyRepresentative Breaks
Up Vacation, Coming
From Bay State.

REPRESENTATIVE EDITH ROUSSE ROGERS, of Massachusetts, has heard the call of duty as the always does and interrupted her summer vacation to hurry down to Washington yesterday to attend to some important missions for her constituents.

Mrs. Rogers will be here only a week, but will return before September 15, when the House of Representatives convenes, for the lady from Massachusetts can be seen on the floor at any hour the House is in session listening carefully to all the business being transacted or rising to make a point herself.

She carries with her a large bundle of papers and documents which she works on between happenings in the chamber. Mrs. Rogers never fails to visit her boys at Walter Reed Hospital, for she has worked with these and other World War veterans since the early days of the World War and is considered the veterans' champion on the floor of the House of Representatives.

Minister of Panama
Will Go to Maine.

The Minister of Panama, Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, will leave Sunday for Bangor, Me., to pass some time with Senora de Alfaro and their children.

Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, Nicaraguan Minister, has announced that he would continue at his post, his resignation having been rejected by President Jose Moncada. The minister submitted the resignation several weeks ago, pleading that he could not afford with limited private means to remain here.

Dr. Sacasa headed the revolution of two years ago and is a graduate of the Columbia University Medical School.

Dr. Sacasa will be joined in October by Senora de Sacasa, who has been in Europe since late spring.

The Secretary of War, Mr. James W. Good, is back in the Capital after a short stay in Manchester, Mass., with Mrs. Good.

Senator Harry B. Hawes will return to Washington for the opening of Congress on Monday. He has been passing the summer in Missouri and has recently been on a fishing trip in the southern part of the State.

Senator Frederic M. Sackett will leave Washington today to join Mrs. Sackett at Hot Springs, Va., over the week-end. Mrs. Sackett has been passing some time there at the Homestead.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of Senator Swanson, who has been traveling in Europe for several weeks, will return the latter part of next month.

Senator and Mrs. Porter H. Dale, who have been settling themselves in their new home at 1400 Bladen avenue, have left for their home in Vermont and will be absent several weeks.

Senator John Thomas has come from his home in Idaho and is staying at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth called from New York last night on the Mauretania for Europe.

Miss Catherine Tydings, sister of Senator Millard Tydings, who has been the guest of Mrs. Frances Russell Gillette, will leave tomorrow for Richmond, Va.

Irelands Entertain
At Country Club.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritt W. Ireland entertained informally at dinner last night at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club.

Gen. and Mrs. Ireland returned early in the week after passing a few days with Col. and Mrs. Charles Lynch near Fort Royal, Va.

Former Senator James W. Wadsworth and Mrs. Wadsworth are guests of Mrs. Payne Whitney at Saratoga Springs.

Col. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien and the latter's daughter, Miss Caroline O'Brien, have arrived at Saratoga Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Yeatman have left for New York to meet their daughter, Miss Lucille Yeatman, who is returning today from Europe on the George Washington. Miss Yeatman has been attending lectures at the University at Fribourg, Switzerland during the past year.

The Secretary of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Dr. Jose M. Linarez-Rivas, was host to a party of eight at dinner last evening at the Plage Deauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Cullum, wife of Maj. E. G. Cullum, chief of the remount service, has just returned to their home at 3000 Connecticut avenue from a month's cruise with friends on the schooner Vanda. The cruise took in various activities, fishing for swordfish off Montauk Point, racing in the regatta at Edgartown, exploring historic old Nantucket Island and being held up for a day and a half in the little harbor of Cuddychunk by a 70-mile gale outside that crashed a big fishing schooner onto No Man's Land. Maj. Cullum and his daughter, Frances, have returned recently from a trip to Louisville, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Watson have had as their guests at their summer home at Wild Rose Shore on South River, near Annapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming and Mr. Howard Moran of Washington.

Mrs. J. Craig King to Visit Her Parents.

Mrs. J. Craig King and her son, Byron Adams King, left last night for Atlantic City, N. J., where they will be at the Marlborough-Blenheim for two weeks. They will then go to Spring Lake, N. J., to visit Mrs. King's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Adams, who will be at the Monmouth Hotel until the middle of September.

Among those entertaining for luncheon yesterday on the Willard roof were Dr. George Boyd and Mr. Walter H. Newton, Secretary to the President.

Mr. and Mrs. William Boyd Spencer and their son, William Boyd Spencer, Jr., left yesterday for Philadelphia for a few days. They will return to their home 35 1348 Park road northwest before returning to Yokohama, Japan, where Mr. Spencer is an attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ritchie 3d, of Greenville, N. C., have gone to Frederick, Md., on a visit to attend many parties given in their honor and will return to Washington, Monday, to continue their visit with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ritchie, Jr.

Miss Putnam
Bride of Navy
CommanderMarried in Amoy, China, to Flag Lieut. C. F.
Wheeler.

Announcements have just been received of the marriage of Miss Donna Rieley Putnam, daughter of John R. Putnam, American Consul at Amoy, China, and Mrs. Putnam, to Commander Charles Julian Wheeler, U. S. N., flag lieutenant to the commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, which took place June 20, in Amoy.

The bride is the granddaughter of the late Justice John R. Putnam, of the New York Supreme Court, whose ancestors were among the earliest settlers in New York State. Commander Wheeler is the son of Mrs. Charles J. Wheeler, of Mobile, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kenneth Murray are departing this week for Woodmont, Conn., and Ventnor, N. J.

Miss Betty Riddale and Miss Patricia Riddale, who were in Glacier National Park during July, have now joined their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percival Riddale, at Lake Superior, N. H.

Miss Elisabeth Randolph Shirley, who went to Spain early in the spring to take charge of the exhibit of the U. S. Children's Bureau at the Ibero-American Exposition in Seville, and who has spent the last two months traveling in Venezuela and Brazil with Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, has returned and has joined her mother at their home in Mount Air, near Accotink, Va.

Mr. Leo J. Flynn, an attorney in the Interstate Commerce Commission, will sail tomorrow for Europe on the S. S. Leviathan of the United States Lines. He will return on the same ship, sailing for home on September 5.

Maj. Shefik Bey, Capt. Ferruh Bey, First Lieut. Kiazim Bey, Ahmed Emin Bey and Moushik Bey flew to Langley Field yesterday morning. They visited Fort Monroe in the afternoon and returned to the Carlton Hotel last evening. Today they will visit Annapolis, Md., where they will inspect the Naval Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Leighty will close their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel on Thursday and will motor to New York where they will join their son, Mr. Carl Leighty. They will go by boat from there to Albany and will then motor to the Lake Placid Club, where they will pass about two weeks. Later they will motor to Canada for a short trip returning to their apartment at the hotel the middle of September.

Maj. and Mrs. William J. Connolly are spending a week at the Brighton, on route from Edgewood Arsenal, Md., where they have been stationed, to Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Mr. F. B. Lyon has been joined at the Wardman Park Hotel by his sons, Mr. Jerry Lyon and Mr. Arthur Lyon.

Mute to Face Girl's Charges

Hearing on Alleged Attempt to Assault Set for Next Monday.

Frank Berman, apparently about 30 years old, who claims to be a deaf mute, will be given a hearing Monday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of attempted assault on an 11-year-old girl. He is at liberty under $5,000 bond.

Berman was arrested yesterday afternoon by Deputy United States Marshal John J. Clarkson and Clarence Swan. He was immediately taken before Commissioner Turnage and pleaded not guilty. His plea was made to the court in the mute's sign language, which was interpreted by Deputy Marshal Swan.

The alleged assault is said to have been committed in the girl's home on August 6, while the mother was at work in her store downtown. Berman, who is said to have an interest in the property, is said to have a room in the house, but not in the part used by the girl's family.

Police Looking for Man Who Can Drive Horse

A horse thief is at large in the Nation's Capital.

William Jackson, of Oxon Hill, Md., told police of the First Precinct yesterday that his horse and wagon was stolen from their parking place at Twelfth and B streets northwest.

Jackson described the animal as a blind bay horse, 13 years old. The wagon, of the huckster type, he said, was filled with empty baskets and crates. The report was broadcast to all precincts and all policemen were ordered to be on the lookout for the horse thief.

PANTAGES' DEFENSE TO CALL WITNESSES

Girl Faints Third Time as Theater Magnate's Hearing Goes On.

ALLEGED FIGHT ENACTED

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Attorneys for Alexander Pantages, 54-year-old theatrical magnate, who is charged with a statutory offense and attacking a 17-year-old dancer by force and violence, today announced that they would summon witnesses during his preliminary hearing now under way here. Their previous plan merely to question State's witnesses was abandoned.

A stipulation made by the defense for the appointment of three physicians to examine the girl, Eunice Pringle, was agreed to by the prosecution. The doctors will be selected, each by the court, prosecution and defense.

Cross-examination by the dancer at today's session of the hearing failed to break down her story of an alleged criminal attack by the wealthy theater owner. She was questioned closely on her testimony yesterday in which she described the incident, charging Pantages lured her into a private office last Friday on the pretense he was going to book her vaudeville act and then attacked her.

Pantages' Sons Ousted.

Pantages' two sons, Lloyd and Rodney, who attended the morning session of the hearing, were ousted from the courtroom during the afternoon. Miss Pringle's mother, Mrs. Irene Pringle, was permitted to remain with her daughter.

The Los Angeles dancer's mother and father, who had been estranged, said the incident had brought them together and that they had reached a reconciliation. The father, Dr. Lewis Pringle, is a Los Angeles physician.

Miss Pringle collapsed a third time since the beginning of the hearing when defense attorneys resumed their cross-examination this afternoon and took the witness over the details of the alleged attack.

Girl Pitches Forward.

"It was awful-awful," the girl cried and pitched forward, nearly falling from the witness stand as she testified.

After she was revived, the witness identified garments, introduced as those she had worn the day of the attack, and then at the request of defense attorneys, she reenacted parts of the alleged struggle with Pantages.

Before the afternoon session began, the theater magnate seemed to reporters he expected to be held for trial but believed he would be exonerated then.

Only court officials and principals in the case were present in the courtroom.

Court Dismisses Bankruptcy Plea

Failure of Man to Cover Referee's Expenses of $10 Causes Action.

Martin J. Zimmerman, of 2015 R street northeast, who recently asked the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt and free him of liabilities totaling $231,907.45, failed to put up a deposit of less than $10 to cover expenses incurred by the referee in bankruptcy, and as a result Justice William Hitz yesterday dismissed his voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

Zimmerman was permitted to file his petition July 11 last without payment of costs. Yesterday Fred J. Widen, referee in bankruptcy, told the court that Zimmerman had neglected to make necessary deposits within the specified time, and asked that the petition be dismissed. The referee's costs include advertising and notice to creditors. The referee explained to the court that he had asked for a deposit of less than $10.

Zimmerman, in his petition, fixed his liabilities at $231,907.45 and asserted his assets were less than the exemption allowed by the law.

COL. JAMES C. ROOP.

Roop Takes Oath As Budget Chief

Served as Assistant When Dawes Was Head of Bureau Here.

Col. James C. Roop, Chicago banker, yesterday took the oath of office as director of the Bureau of the Budget, succeeding Brig. Gen. Herbert M. Lord, who retired from the office May 31, to enter private business.

Prior to assuming his new duties, Roop conferred at length with President Hoover by whom he was appointed. The oath of office was administered by H. W. Studier, assistant chief of the Treasury appointments division. At the Budget Bureau the new director was received by R. C. Kloeber, assistant director. Col. Roop is not entirely a stranger to the budget work, inasmuch as he was assistant to Gen. Charles G. Dawes, when the latter was budget director. Roop is the third man to hold position of director of the budget, Gen. Dawes, now ambassador to Great Britain, and Gen. Lord being his only predecessors.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Listen!

There can't be anything
truer than truth

How a Radio Manufacturer Looks at His Own Job

"I could not be happy doing the same thing every day in the same way," said A. Atwater Kent at the dedication of his thirty-two acre radio factory. "I like a game which puts me on my mettle, makes me keep my wits about me, forces me to meet and beat new problems."

"Many people find as they grow older that they have an inclination to slow up, especially if they have achieved some success. I think that is a great mistake. I am always ready to go ahead, to find a new way to do an old thing or discover some new thing to do."

"If a man relaxes and leans back and feels satisfied with what he has done, he is likely to find himself without the advantage of opportunity when new opportunities arise."

"The way to be ready to do some new thing is never to stop doing some thing new. This is one of the reasons I'm so happy to be in the radio business."

"I am sure you will pardon me when I say this is a matter of pride to realize that this is the largest radio factory in the world."

THE very tap-tap of the orchestra leader's baton! The very personality of the man or woman who is singing or speaking!

Behind this truthful tone of the Atwater Kent Screen-Grid, there's mighty power that fairly leaps with seven-league boots to obey your slightest touch . . . Behind this power is the finest construction that can be put into a radio set. Behind this construction is the engineering experience of 27 years. And behind that are the resources of the largest radio factory in the world, with a capacity of 12,000 complete radio sets a day.

Gloucester Fishermen Trust All to Radio

When the Gloucester fishing boats—the fleet that Kipling wrote about in "Captains Courageous"—go forth to chase mackerel up to the Grand Banks, the fishermen receive information upon which their lives and fortunes depend, through Atwater Kent Radio.

There are 150 boats in the fleet, and every one has radio—not the dash-dot sets that trans-ocean liners use—but the same kind of sets you use at home.

The fishermen have their own broadcasting station, WJZB, which sends to the fleet the news of arrivals at Gloucester, prices of fish and the places where fish are being caught. The prices are broadcast in code. If they are low and a vessel receiving the information is only half loaded, it stays on the job. If the price is high, each boat races madly to port to cash in.

The fishermen's station also broadcasts weather reports and personal information about the health of the families at home. On full days when fish are scarce the boats are loading outside the wharves, waiting for news of the mackerel run.

Al Jolson Feature on Air Tonight

Will Sing Numbers From His Latest Show at 10 on WRC—Light Opera Gems on WMAL—WOL Has Fishermen News.

Al Jolson, accompanied by an eleven piece orchestra, will furnish the high light of radio entertainment this evening when he is featured over a coast to coast network, headed by WEAF and including WRC, at 10 o'clock. Jolson will sing three numbers from his latest show, "Say It With Songs," including the hit, "Little Pal."

Merle Johnston, saxophone soloist, will be featured in a program of popular and light classical music in the Cities Service Hour at 7 o'clock from WEAF. He will be heard playing "Melodie" and his specialty, "Around the Bend." Roscoe Bourdon directs the orchestra. The Cavallera, a male quartet, will sing the Scottish melody, "In the Gloaming," and with the orchestra, "Mother Machree."

Quas and Louie, the garage party of Scheraderown, have decided to try advertising for the 4800 stolen out of their cash register and for the Widow Biddle's pilfered diamond ring. The usual band numbers led by Arthur Pryor will be the feature of this program.

Haydn's symphony, "Oxford," performed in the Sheldonian Theater, London, in 1791, when the composer was honored by the University with the degree of doctor of music, will be heard in the program of Slumber Music to be broadcast at 10:15 o'clock. The overture to "Anacreon, ou L'Amour Fugitif," by Cherubini; and "Valse Nocturne," Schubert; and "Pavane," Ravel, are the other selections.

Arcade Birkholls, violinist, will be featured with the American Singers in the broadcast of "Evening Stars" at 10:30 o'clock this morning. This program will be dedicated to WJZ, Detroit, and at the request of WJZ, John B. Daniel will be guest announcer. The American Singers and Arcade Birkholls appear together in recital every Sunday night over an NBC network. The members of the quartet are Charles Harrison and Lambert Murphy, baritone; Frank Archibald, baritone; and Frank Croxon, bass, with Arthur Leonard, as pianist.

Great Van Eps, playing "All Wet Medley," a banjo specialty, will be heard with the Dark Town Wanderers in their broadcast from WMAL at 9 o'clock. Also appearing on this program will be J. Rosemund Johnson, baritone; and Uncle Isaac Alvin Simmons, as guitar, and Arthur Shurt as piano.

Orchestra numbers from the scores of Rombert, Friml and Lehár will be heard during the Light Opera Gems broadcast from WMAL at 9 o'clock. Friml also contributes the soprano's portion of the program, "Sapphires Sea," which will be accompanied by the orchestra. The mixed quartet will be heard in the "Gondoliers" from the opera of the same name by Victor Herbert. Victor Herbert's "All For You" will be sung by the tenor, and the same composer's works have been called on for the contralto and baritone duet, "Because You're You."

An Army Band concert will be presented between 8 and 9 o'clock. Johnny Slaughter and his Chrysler Orchestra will be featured at 8:45 o'clock.

The newest regular weekly feature from WOL is "Let's All Go Fishing Tomorrow," under the auspices of the Frank Walton League. The talk is designed to give week-end fishermen information as to the condition of the waters around Washington and the best places to fish. This evening Glen C. Leach, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, will be the speaker.

Katherine Dunning, pianist, and Pauline Healy Shook, soprano, will be in the studio from 6 and 6:30 o'clock for short recitals.

The second act of "Blossom Time," a musical comedy in three acts, will be presented by Muriel Wilson, soprano; Colin Moore, baritone; and the supporting cast of Philco's Theater Memories during their broadcast at 8:30 o'clock from WJZ.

TODAY'S WOMEN
By EARL MINDERMAN
AUGUST 16.
THE "Queen of Hearts," as Queen Elizabeth Stuart is known to history, was born this day, 1596. In reality, Elizabeth was Queen of Bohemia, her husband, Frederick, having accepted the crown offered by the Protestants of that country. Defeated by the Imperialists, he was forced to flee to England with his queen. Their cause was popular there and the queen won the title, "Queen of Hearts." She was the grandmother of George I of England.
Baroness Carolina Oliphant Naime, writer of some of the most popular poems in Scottish literature, was born this day, 1766. Among her more popular poems are "The Land of the Leal," "The Laird o' Cockpen," "Callie Herrie," and "The Auld House."
Other noted women born this day include Dora K. Ransom, American educator and writer, 1859 and Sarah Porter, educator, 1813.

STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS OF YESTERDAY

Market Is Inclined to Falter as Recent Shock to Credit Is Recalled.

FEW SPOTS ARE STRONG

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.)—The stock market was inclined to falter today before the weekly Federal Reserve announcements after the close of the session, recalling the violent shock of a week ago, when the rediscount rate was jacked up from 5 to 6 per cent. Trading slackened considerably, less than 3,500,000 shares changing hands, but bullish operators were pressed forward in the afternoon, and the statement produced a pleasant surprise, showing a decline of $100,000,000. What with the sharp reaction, an uncertainty in the market had been regarded as a possibility.

The liquidation of loans in last Friday's drastic break enabled the New York banks to withdraw $100,000,000 from the market, and to pay off $104,000,000 of their borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank, reducing their indebtedness to $191,000,000, which is $3,000,000 above that of a year ago. This was the first reduction in the New York banks' indebtedness since they were sharply increased to meet the midyear requirements.

Federal Reserve System condition statement disclosed the expected increase in bankers' acceptances bought in the open market, foreshadowed by the reduction of the buying rate, but simultaneously with the increase in the discount rate. The system added approximately $30,000,000 to its acceptance holdings, and the Government securities held, however, were permitted to decline slightly. Redcounting at New York fell off nearly 100 points, but increases elsewhere left a net reduction for the system of only about $30,000,000. The New York reserve ratio increased from 16.1 to 16.2 per cent, but that for the entire system was unchanged from last week at 14.6. The Bank of England made no change in its 5 per cent discount rate, although further takings of gold for New York were announced. The bank's retention of the rate despite declining reserves appeared to be explained for a time by an announcement that the Government had a $250,000,000 credit through the New York Federal Reserve Bank, to be used if needed. This was officially denied later, however, although New York bankers stated that such a credit would undoubtedly be quickly granted if requested.

Accumulation of Cars Shown.

Prominent in the day's news was the General Motors sales report, showing dealer sales of 181,851 cars, and deliveries to dealers of 189,428, indicating a slight recovery in the car market. In July of last year, sales to consumers were 177,728 cars, and deliveries to dealers 189,473. Freight car loadings for the week ending August 10 were announced a new high record. Prairie Oil resumed dividends after a two-year suspension. Standard Oil and Columbia Carbon published excellent earnings reports.

United States Steel requested its market leadership of the past few days, and closed fractionally lower. American Can, Consolidated Gas, Clifton Safety Razor, and other stocks, Newport Co., Westinghouse Air Brake and Northwestern Pump were among stocks that rallied to recent prices. Wright Aero mounted nearly 10 points to a new high on prospective early consumption of the merger with Curtiss.

General Asphalt sold up about 4 points to a new top on revived reports of segregation in the asphalt and petroleum businesses, and estimate that current earnings are at the annual rate of $100,000,000. The report was jumped about 7 points, but sold back near 5.

Case Thrashing Raisins.

Brooklyn Union Gas and Vulcan Detinning dropped about 9 points, and Case Thrashing tumbled 15, then rallied 10 in a small turnover. Reddell, Columbian Carbon and National Bleach lost 5 to 7 points, and such shares as Allied Chemical, Fleischmann, North American, Radio, Anacosta and Goodyear sagged a point or two, the last named mounting a new low for the year at 103.

In the commodities, grains were firm with wheat, corn mounting about 2 points on bullish weather. Cotton, however, was again heavy, declining about 95 cents to $13.50 a bale. The Census Bureau's July consumption report was in line with expectations, and a more bullish view was taken of the weather.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease.

With sterling cables sagging to $4.64, on retention of the Bank of England's 5 per cent discount rate.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.)—Further declines occurred in the cotton market here today, owing to a continuation of yesterday's selling movement, which was followed by the apparent indifference of traders to the central bank's new crop news and accompanied by talk of a gradual increase in the demand for the South. Prices made new low records for the month on most positions, with the December contract selling at 12.21 and the October at 12.15. The general market closed fairly steady, with a decline of 19 to 27 points.

The market was steady at declines of 3 to 4 points under overnight selling on the fair steady showing of Liverpool and encouraging reports of work in the Lancashire mills. Some covering was noted in the demand for the new crop, and prices were held steady. Rather a more favorable view of the weather in the eastern belt probably contributed to the steady market. A little more bullishness was noted in the crop reports, but they were not sufficient to be partly against the gradually increasing new crop movement. The price of the pressure was attributed to further liquidation of the market, and the price of the pressure was attributed to further liquidation of the market, and the price of the pressure was attributed to further liquidation of the market.

Wheat futures, October contracts sold at 12.15, and the price of the pressure was attributed to further liquidation of the market.

Closing prices were the lowest of the day. Very little rain was reported in the Southwest, but temperatures were somewhat lower on the average, while no rain was reported in the central belt. The market was in the East. The reports of crop progress were not sufficient to be partly against the gradually increasing new crop movement.

BOARDS ARE STEADY

INVESTMENT AND CONVERTIBLE

Investment and Convertible Issues Generally Are Neglected.

FOREIGN GROUP SPOTTY

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.)—The bond market was steady today in the dull full-day session in three weeks. Inquiry for domestic investment bonds, particularly rails, was almost at a standstill, and traders paid much less attention than usual to the convertibles. Speculative issues in the various groups showed a little activity, but price changes throughout the list ruled small.

The slackness of the market was illustrated by the light trading in American Telephone convertible 4 1/2's. These debentures, which usually turn over to the extent of at least $2,000,000, sold under the million-dollar mark today and other share privilege bonds were equally dull. Fluctuations kept within narrow limits and the only change of consequence at the close was net gains of 5 and 3 points, respectively, in General Asphalt and also Founding Corp.

The rails, neglected after several days of moderate activity, managed to hold firm. Nominal advances appeared in Central of Georgia, Denver & Rio Grande Western, New York Central, and others. New York Central advanced 1/2 point, New York Central & Hudson River 1/2 point, and Texas prior lien 5's and St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1/2's.

Weakness of the foreign sugar stock out prominently. Cuban Central debenture 5's and convertible 7's went to new lows, while Manilla Sugar 7's also found a new bottom on a loss of 3 1/2.

Industrials and utilities shared in the general stagnation and fractional gains and losses were about evenly distributed. Oil Steel 6's, profiting by the best demand in some time, strengthened slightly.

The foreign group was spotty and inactive. Kingdom of Belgium 7's, Canadian 5's, 1925 and French Republic 7's advanced in the morning, but British United Kingdom 4's touched the new low of 60 1/2.

Small stocks of Liberty bonds changed hands at irregularly higher levels. Treasury certificates were firm. Contrary to expectations, the Federal Reserve Bank's portfolio of Government securities showed a slight decrease this week.

GREENOCK NEVER HEADED IN HAWTHORNE PET

Derby Victor Runs Out of Money

Clyde Van Dusen Is Badly Beaten in 6-Furlong Sprint.

Coe's Caruso Plows Through Mud to Win at Spa.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Ill., Aug. 15 (A.P.)—Greenock, racing for August Stakes, captured the Irving Farm Handicap, a 6-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds and up here today, defeating the crack Man o' War colt, Clyde Van Dusen, and four other good horses. It was the biggest upset of the day. Brown Wisdom, from the Belcher Brothers Stable, was second and Martinique from D. E. Stewart's Stable was third. Clyde Van Dusen was eased up when beaten. Only five started, Ekimo having been scratched.

Greenock, with Halbert in the saddle, was away fast and making every pole a winning one, soon by a length Brown Wisdom hung on to the winner throughout to take the place money by five lengths. Martinique, away last and out in the first 3 furlongs, closed some ground to take third money by half a length from Clyde Van Dusen.

Stable was third. Clyde Van Dusen was eased up when beaten. Only five started, Ekimo having been scratched. In the third money Nellie Curtis, the Audley Farm 3-year-old filly, won her sixth straight victory when she captured the Wiggins Purse, a 6-furlong sprint for 3-year-olds.

Acting on a protest made by D. Rosenheim, owner of the Rose Home Stable, the stewards disqualified Arcturion, the 4-year-old colt who had won the 6-furlong sprint Wednesday and awarded the Rose Home Purse to Nellie Curtis. Caruso Wins in Mud at Saratoga.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.)—A muddy track here today a hoodoo to Caruso, W. R. C. colt, and gelding, proved no hindrance today as the flashy son of Polymellian plowed his way to an expected victory in the 6-furlong sprint at Saratoga.

Although winner of the $10,000 United States Hotel Stakes earlier in the meeting at the Saratoga, Caruso was all but forgotten by the form players when the large, classy filly 2-year-old, B. C. colt, because he had never shown anything worth while over heavy going and in addition, packed on 100 pounds of the players and horsemen did not consider him in their deductions. The result was he paid 6 to 1 and won $2,000 on the right side of the counter for his owner.

Running second was Flying Heels, an added starter and the favorite at 2 to 1, while the Mendham Stable's Reg Rag took down the short end of the purse.

BANK DEPOSITS

Comptroller's Report Shows Big Growth in Trust Activities.

STOCK TRADING EXPANDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.
The growth in bank deposits revealed here by the last call of the Comptroller of the Currency was also nationwide. His detailed statement yesterday, dealing with the June 30 call, showed that resources of 7,536 reporting banks in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii were $27,429,238,000, a decrease of $1,590,684,000 from the previous call of March 27, and one of $1,009,011,000 from that of June 30, 1928.

There were 7,576 banks reporting in March and 7,601 in June a year ago, and the reduction in the number of banks engaged in stock trading and administering 75,988 trusts. Individual trust assets of these banks totaled $2,247,448,000, an increase of $940,336,000 in these, or 28.52 per cent over call date of March 27. The growth in fiduciary activities of the banks in the national banking system and the growing popularity with the public of the important branch of national bank operations, according to Comptroller Pyle, are even more impressive when compared with the similar activities of national banks in this field only three years ago. In June, 1926, national banks administered 2,025 had authority to exercise trust functions and only 1,104 actively engaged in these. These banks were then administering $222,826,877 in individual trust assets of $922,826,877 and were acting as trustees for bond and note issues aggregating $2,459,558,816.

Compared with the figures compiled as of June 28, 1929, this presents an increase in the number of national banks authorized to administer trusts of 416 or 30.33 per cent; an increase in the number of banks operating trust departments of 680, or 57.07 per cent; an increase in the number of trusts administered of 49,985, or 191.87 per cent; one of $3,819,919,896, or 359.45 per cent in individual trust assets and one of $4,809,601,401, or 192.12 per cent in volume of bond and note issue outstanding for which these banks were acting as trustees.

Loans and discounts including reserves on June 29 were $14,801,130,000, a decrease of approximately $500,000 since March 27, and the percentage of discounts and loans to total deposits as of June 29 was 85.85, compared with 85.22 on March 27, and 85.58 on June 30 last year.

Stock Sales Are Heavy.
Extraordinary large sales in the usually heavy selling low-priced issues swelled the stock-trading volume yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange, where a slight improvement in the bond division was also shown. National Mortgage and Investment preferred, which generally sells in blocks of 100 shares, was traded yesterday to the extent of 210 shares at 44, a fractional recession, and Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty, preferred, customarily transferring in similar amounts, figured in sales aggregating 563 shares.

The total of stock transactions amounted to 883 shares, a record high for the past few weeks and an advance of 454 above the previous session. Bond transactions, all in small lots, totaled 64,241, a gain of 82,900 over the preceding day. Washington Gas & Capital Traction bonds vied equally in popularity.

Reserve Bank Report.
The report of the Federal Reserve Board yesterday showed a weekly total of $9,929,000,000 in loans on securities to brokers and dealers, a decrease of $68,000,000 under the previous week's increase. The total of $1,729,000,000 above that of the corresponding period last year.

Loans for other purposes aggregated $968,000,000, a decrease of $124,000,000 from the week prior and a gain of $182,000,000 over the comparative period in 1928. The total of $1,729,000,000 above that of the corresponding period last year.

Stocks of Bituminous Coal.
Commenting on the Government report of stocks of bituminous coal in the hands of consumers, released by the United States Bureau of Mines yesterday, the National Coal Association points out that the total quantity of bituminous coal, 33,100,000 tons, in the stock piles of consumers on July 1, 1929, is the smallest quantity reported since July 1, 1920, except for the period immediately following the long suspension of bituminous coal mining in 1922.

During the summer of 1920 the supply of bituminous coal in the hands of consumers dropped to a very low level and transportation difficulties added to the difficulty of later brought about a very severe runaway market for bituminous coal during July, August and September of that year.
